

Flood Victims Encouraged To Finance Own Housing Units

Liberal Loan Plans Offered By Government

FLOOD VICTIMS in need of permanent housing are going to be encouraged to build their own homes with the help of generous loan plans offered by at least two Federal agencies.

This decision was reached last night at a meeting of more than 30 representatives of local service and civic organizations, who met in the Stroudsburg Council chambers to discuss the need for new housing units—especially for families in the low-income bracket.

At the same time, 27 of those in attendance signed a petition requesting Gov. George M. Leader to certify the establishment of a housing authority for Monroe County.

Arranging Interview

Rev. Roger C. Stimson, pastor of Stroudsburg Methodist Church and a leading figure in the borough's flood rehabilitation program, said that Rep. Van D. Yetter is arranging for him to have an interview with the Governor in the immediate future.

"I'll present the petition at that time," said the clergyman, who presided at last night's session.

The gathering also made preliminary plans to invite flood victims in the twin boroughs and surrounding areas to attend a meeting within the next week, at which time Federal disaster loan plans will be discussed.

Plans to hold the meeting were made after one civic leader remarked: "I bet a lot of flood victims would try to build their own homes if they knew these loans were available."

FHA Terms Revealed

John J. Doyle of the Federal Housing Administration's Philadelphia office, outlined in detail what the FHA can offer to flood victims.

Such persons wishing to build a new home can get a "100 per cent" mortgage on amounts up to $7,000, he explained. They can get 95 per cent of the first $9,000 and up to 75 per cent of the amount in excess of $9,000.

Doyle explained that very liberal terms are also offered to persons wishing to buy existing dwellings. In such cases, the FHA will lend up to 90 per cent on the first $9,000, with 25 per cent down required in any amount in excess of that figure.

The loans are privately-financed at local banks with the backing of FHA, he said. No lending institution may charge more than four-and-a-half per cent interest, and loans are available up to 30 years.

Meeting Set Up

A home-owner who received $7,000 would repay the amount at about $38.34 a month for 30 years, Doyle said. He would also pay his taxes at the rate of one-twelfth the total bill each month.

Plans are to have a representative of the FHA, the Federal Small Business Administration, and the Red Cross attend the meeting to which flood victims will be invited.

It was pointed out that the SBA has received only a few home loan applications at its local office, which will be closed within the next few weeks.

Those in attendance sought to have flood victims know of SBA's program before the local office shuts down. After that time, applications will have to be made directly to the regional office in Philadelphia.

It was reported that SBA's home (Please turn to page ten)

Adlai Says Flexible Farm Props Failed

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 7 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said tonight the nation's farm problem is a "desperately difficult one," and the present Republican policy of sliding or flexible supports "is not working."

"Instead of eliminating surpluses, as advertised," Stevenson said "it is elimination farmers, as not advertised. After two or three years of heroics, ballyhoo and unprecedented applause from the Republican press, our past problems are all still with us, just as we Democrats foresaw."

"Export subsidies, import quotas still sharply conflict with our declarations about freer world trade. There is still indefensible discrimination between different commodities, storable and perishables. And the burdensome surpluses are still burdening us. As a result the problem of controls, effective controls, still remains."

In a speech prepared for the Wisconsin State Democratic convention Stevenson added:

"Yet the difficulties that now beset the farmer pose grave problems and also dangerous temptations. It will be tempting to us Democrats to say: 'Return the Democrats and the farm problem will be solved.' (And let me say, parenthetically, thank heaven it is a problem of too much instead of too little as it is in so much of the world where I have been.)"

Two Die In Storm

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 7 (AP)—Severe thunderstorms blew across Western New York tonight and left at least two persons dead. Both were struck by automobiles during heavy rain and poor visibility.

Advices Coalition On Flood Control

Tampico, Mexico Situation Grave

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 7 (AP)—A 10-inch drop in the street water level today cheered flood-stricken Tampico, but a U. S. Navy spokesman described conditions there as grave.

Rescue and relief measures were intensified to ease the plight of about 150,000 persons crowded into a small part of the city whose normal population is 110,000.

Capt. Francis O. Fletcher, U. S. embassy naval attaché acting as chief of staff for Adm. M. A. Miles in Tampico, told a news conference here the situation in Tampico is comparable to the 1923 earthquake in Japan.

10,000 Houses Destroyed

Fletcher said about 40,000 persons have crowded into the city from the flooded distress zone that covered an arc ranging 45 miles north, 50 miles west and 75 miles south. He estimated 10,000 dwellings have been destroyed.

Hydraulic resources Secretary Eduardo Chavez of the Mexican federal cabinet predicted the swollen Panuco River would remain at about its present level about 15 feet over flood stage for three days and then begin dropping gradually.

Men armed with machetes and sticks killed more than 20 deadly snakes in Tampico streets today. The reptiles floated in from the countryside on tree trunks and other flood debris.

Greatest danger now facing Tampico's refugees is that of epidemics. Cases of typhoid, dysentery, and malaria increased.

The drinking water problem was nearing solution, with new supplies of disinfectant tablets and operation of portable distillation units.

New U. S. Navy and Army units were en route to the devastated oil port to join augmented Mexican government relief groups.

Here is the policy spelled out by Dr. Goddard, for flood control work by Department of Forests and Waters, including local municipal responsibility:

Work Policy

These projects shall consist primarily of the removal of gravel bars and flood debris from stream channels for the purpose of preventing or alleviating the direct flooding of buildings, houses, summer cottages or other such properties. The projects may include improvement of channel alignment, construction of by-pass and overflow channels, and the clearing of over-bank channels where found necessary, and replacement of excavated material in spoil banks to provide initial protection.

Bank protection work may also be included, but only where a primarily occupied or used building or buildings are subject to destruction by future erosion of the stream bank. The construction or repair of retaining walls shall not be made a part of these projects, and where such work is necessary, it must be accomplished by the sponsor and/or the local people. It is not intended that streams be cleaned from the headwaters to the mouth, but projects for individual homes and farms may be undertaken where the potential damage is sufficient to justify the cost. This would include the relocation of streams in their original stream channel.

The removal of gravel and flood debris from the yards of private dwellings or business places may be incorporated in a channel cleaning project, that is, such removal must be incidental to the channel project.

Leaves, Drains
Certain projects may include the construction of levees and the installation of storm drains. The cost of materials necessary for drainage structures through the levees and for the storm sewers shall be included in the estimated cost of the work.

"The cleaning out" of a pond behind a privately owned dam is not considered to be disaster relief work unless a community is jeopardized by this condition. However, in the case of the dam in poor condition and subject to failure, the removal or breaching of the structure may be undertaken. When a bridge, the owner of the structure should be notified and his approval obtained prior to start of work.

Floods In India
NEW DELHI, Oct. 7 (AP)—About 100 persons tonight were reported dead in floods in the three north Indian states of Punjab, Patiala and Delhi.

Crash At Intersection
In Stroudsburg, a two car collision occurred at the intersection of Fifth and Phillips Sts., yesterday morning.

Patrolman John Boujan said Richard Anglemeyer, 17, 879 White St., was going north on Fifth St., and had begun to turn into Phillips when he was struck by another vehicle, driven by Francis Lesh, 35, of 385 Broadhead Ave., East Stroudsburg.

There were no injuries.

30 Stitches Taken In Man's Forehead After Car Crosses Ramp, Strikes Bank

THIRTY STITCHES were required to close a deep gash in the forehead of a 38-year-old Lackawanna County resident, who was injured in one of three highway accidents reported yesterday.

Robert C. Fisher, Jermy, was admitted to Monroe County General Hospital, where he was reported in fair condition last night. In addition to the forehead laceration, several teeth were knocked out.

Apparently Dozed

Fisher was injured early yesterday morning when his car jumped the dividing ramp on Route 611 in Mount Pocono and crashed into an eight foot embankment on the opposite side of the road.

Post also reported a second accident occurred at 8:30 yesterday morning at the intersection of Routes 611 and 196, near the Summit Rd.

A sedan operated by Hugh McMenamin, 39, Scranton, was traveling south on 611, when he passed through a red-light, which he was unable to see in the dense fog, Post said. As a result, the car crashed into the side of a school bus coming out of Route 196 and on its way across the highway into the Summit Rd.

Flood Control Policy Stated By Goddard

DR. MAURICE Goddard told some 150 representatives from the Poconos and adjacent areas that regional offices, including one in Stroudsburg, were being set up yesterday to cope with flood control work, and he spelled out the policy under which this work will be done.

Goddard emphasized the work is "a watershed" job, not just a one-agency task. The local office will be staffed with two engineers and two construction foremen who will direct the work to be done by contract.

Any questions of "doubt" under policy of operations, Dr. Goddard said, "will be resolved in favor of the people." He warned all cannot be done that people are expecting and that patience is of supreme importance.

Senate Delays School Funds Compromise

HARRISBURG, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Senate today put off until Monday a possible compromise on a $21 million dollar appropriation for school subsidies.

"We'll battle it out on Monday," said Sen. Joseph M. Barr, state Democratic chairman, as a brief session came to a close.

The Democratic-controlled House has passed a bill carrying a $26 million dollar appropriation for state aid to schools. Senate Republicans, however, wrote and advanced their own substitute marking down the sum by five millions.

Two Democratic senators, meanwhile prepared to introduce an amendment to the GOP bill boosting the total to 470 millions.

Salary Boost
Sens Harry E. Seyler (D-York) and Jo Hays (D-Centre), both school administrators, said the added amount was intended to pay for a new $20 a year salary boost for all school teachers.

This would be in addition to increases in teachers' pay already provided for in the original $26 million dollar appropriation asked by Gov. Leader. That increase was approved by previous legislatures.

Seyler and Hays said they had "not consulted" other Senate Democrats on the matter but felt that the additional pay is needed to hold good teachers in the school system and to attract new and young talent.

Law Restricts Vaccine Sales
HARRISBURG, Oct. 7 (AP)—Gov. Leader today signed a bill to prevent any possible development of black market traffic in Salk polio vaccine.

The Legislature—approved measure makes it illegal for any person other than licensed physicians or pharmacists to sell vaccine. At the same time the new law makes it a criminal offense for a manufacturer to sell or distribute, at wholesale, Salk vaccine to unauthorized persons.

Violation of the new law could result in a $500 fine or imprisonment for one year.

The governor also signed into law a bill designed to give the state Pharmacy Board broader powers in regulation of compounding of drugs.

Final Utensil Distribution Set
STROUDSBURG Methodist Church announced last night that final distribution of cooking utensils and dishes to flood victims will be made from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. today at 821 Sarah St.

The center will be closed after today. Recipients should bring with them suitable containers in which to pack articles they select.

Faure Rushes New Minister To Push Moroccan Reforms

PAEIS, Oct. 7 (AP)—Premier Edgar Faure today sent his new defense minister, Gen. Pierre Billotte, to take a first look at Morocco. His government was fighting for its life on the question of reforms in the terrorist-ridden North African protectorate.

Billotte's precise mission was not clear. He spoke of going to inspect the military situation and to talk with Gen. Pierre Boyer de Latour, the French resident general.

But in view of the tense political atmosphere, with debate on Moroccan policies in its second day before the National Assembly, there seemed little possibility a member of the government could go to Morocco without discussing the political situation.

Two At Odds
On the same plane with Billotte was Francois de Panafieu, the resident general's top deputy for civil affairs.

De Panafieu has been at odds with Boyer de Latour and has been absent from Rabat more than a week.

The Assembly debate produced few developments. The orators were mostly of secondary importance and their positions of opposition either to the government's policies or the execution of the plan were well known.

The future of the government was still uncertain. Backstage strategists were hard at work, some for and some against Faure. With opposition to the premier crystallized among the right wing parties of the Assembly, his best hope seemed to be a promise from the Socialists to vote for him or at least to abstain on the Moroccan issue.

May Change Plan
To this end, Faure may decide not to make the issue a matter of confidence in his government. The original plan was to call such a vote Monday.

The Socialists never have supported Faure and would be almost bound to vote against him on a question of confidence.

Coed Fails To Break Out Of Hypnosis For $100,000

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7 (AP)—Pat Morris, the cute coed who was offered $100,000 on a TV show if she could break out of a hypnosis and claim the cash, couldn't make it tonight.

The Los Angeles girl was placed under hypnosis by nightclub entertainer Arthur Ellen on the NBC Truth or Consequences show. Five stacks of crisp currency were placed on a table before her. Ellen told her she was physically unable to rise and claim the money.

Despite MC Jack Bailey's urgings to "Get up, Pat," she didn't budge. When the 20 second time limit was up, Ellen clapped his hands, apparently breaking the trance.

Pat's reaction: a sour face and "Oh!"

Afterwards she told Bailey she couldn't remember what had happened during the 20 second period. But there was a consolation for

Most Funds Now Go To West States

POCONO MANOR—Unless the members of the Senate and House from Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey combine, regardless of politics, into a "professional club" these states will "get their brains knocked out" when it comes to Congressional flood control appropriations.

Authority for this statement is the battle-wise Rep. Daniel Flood, (D, Luzerne County), member of the House Appropriations Committee where flood control allocations finally land. Flood addressed 150 people attending a Northeastern Pennsylvania Industrial Commission meeting here.

Rep. Flood said this state pays nine per cent of total federal taxes. In the last flood control appropriation of from $400 to $500 millions, this state should have received 30 to 40 millions and instead received $2 millions in 1954.

West Gets Biggest Share
"California got $30 millions, Washington $70 millions, Oregon $50 millions," he asserted.

"When flood control bill is introduced sectional interests take over, and until Democrats and Republicans of the U. S. Senate and House from Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey combine into a professional club, and let it be known nationally, you'll get your brains knocked out," he warned.

Flood said it is distasteful to him to bring into the open the sectionalism on flood control work and appropriations, but in view of the recent disaster here it has become necessary, otherwise all of the reports made to the group by Corps of Engineers regarding plans for flood control studies and recommendations could not come to pass.

"We don't have the votes and they do," Rep. Flood warned. "You'll get what you put your price tag on," he added.

Congressmen United
Flood said he and Rep. Francis E. Walter, D, Eastern; Rep. Ivor Fenton, D, Schuylkill and Rep. Joseph Carrigg, R, 11th District stood together to fight for flood control before the House. Nine hours of debate and maneuvering took place and when the Pennsylvania amendment came up for consideration, the sectional block walked off the floor.

"There can be no projects across the aisle, both sides must join in this effort," the Luzerne County congressman said.

Rep. Flood proposed that Gov. Leader name a flood control commission to study all of the state's watershed and flood problems.

He said he will introduce a bill for some sort of national flood insurance, a reforestation bill for the "denuded, naked" areas of Northeastern Pennsylvania to restore lumber industry and back up Army engineer's flood control works; and another bill calling for appointment of a Federal Commission to make a study to see if the weather pattern of eastern United States has changed sufficiently to change plans for flood control work in that area.

Engineers File Reports
Col. Clarence Renshaw, director of the eastern United States region, Col. Allen Clark, Philadelphia district and Col. Stephen E. Smith, Baltimore Corps of Engineers, all filed reports on the engineers' past flood control projects, current projects and plans to re-study the Delaware Valley and other valleys to make recommendations.

Argentina Bares Atomic Force

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 7 (AP)—The atomic force of the 20th century—a pipedream that cost Argentina an estimated billion pesos (71½ million dollars).

That was the way investigators for the new provisional government described today the atom-a-for-peace project Juan D. Peron dramatically announced in 1951.

The dictator—now in exile in Paraguay—created a worldwide sensation when he proclaimed that Argentina had discovered the secrets of atomic energy and was on the threshold of producing nuclear power for peaceful purposes.

Convention To Stress Youth Work

HARRISBURG—How to give better religious instruction to more than a million Pennsylvania church school children will be considered at the 93d Sunday School convention at Sunbury, Oct. 11-13.

More than 150 children's workers will dig into old approaches and come up with new answers on ways to teach the Bible and make God real in the lives of children.

The Pennsylvania Council of Christian Education, sponsors of the convention, reported today that of the nation's 42 million Sunday school age children, nearly half receive no religious instruction. The convention will urge churches to pour leadership into reaching the thousands of unchurched children in the state.

Workshop Problems—The convention leaders will hold workshops on such problems as the evangelism of children; teaching the handicapped; the child and group dynamics; the church, child and the home; how children worship; the church school and handicapped children; the church school and weekday religious education.

Rev. Robert E. Broth, director of children's work of the Pennsylvania council, said that the chief function of the program of Christian education is "to help a child grow in Christian personality." He noted that this is quite a contrast to the previous held idea that Christian education was predominantly concerned with teaching "just biblical facts." Today, he observed, the new philosophy implies that the Bible becomes the material out of which Christian character is woven. This approach anticipates the need for a vital experience of worship, he said.

Rev. Newquist To Give Sermon—"HAVE YOU Learned To Say YES?" is the topic for Rev. David C. Newquist's sermon in the Shawnee Presbyterian Church Sunday. The choir will sing an anthem.

The second of a series of monthly Bible study classes sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of the church will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 11 at 2 p. m. in the church. Newquist will lead the discussion of the first two chapters of Philippians. The Women's Auxiliary is planning a fellowship dinner for all members and friends of the congregation on Wednesday, Nov. 2, beginning at 5:30 p. m.

Scripture—Luke 2:41-52

By Newman Campbell

WE KNOW nothing about the childhood of our Lord from the time He was taken to the temple in Jerusalem to be circumcised and recognized as the Christ by Simeon and Anna, until He was 12 years old. Luke tells us only that "the Child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon Him."

What did Joseph and Mary think of their Child? They must have pondered upon the wonders of His birth and the occurrences in the temple. Mary "pondered these things in her heart," Luke tells us, but did she and Joseph discuss them and look wonderingly at their son as He learned to talk, to walk, to play and to read?

He was an obedient child, submitting Himself to His parents, giving them no trouble, we surmise. He must have been a lovable one, and judging from His knowledge of the Scriptures with His quotations therefrom which, in His later years, He often amazed and humiliated His enemies, He was a studious one, determined to learn.

HARVEST

The fruits have been gathered from the fields. They lay about her, rich and ripe, in the autumn sun that is still warm. Never has the sky been so blue, never have the distant mountains been more enchanting with their play of purple shadows. Yet she concentrates on the work at hand, peeling an apple with still dextrous fingers as she rocks on into the long afternoon of life.

She is a simple person. Her life has not been easy. There have been moments of great happiness . . . and of great sadness; times of drought and times when the harvest came in a kind of golden glory from the bounty of the earth.

But through it all she has had a nourishment that has nothing to do with crops and weather, a kind of sustenance that has stood by her at all times and in all seasons . . . FAITH. Hers is a complete Faith in God and in her Church, a Faith that has made her life happy and useful . . . a Faith that has furnished food for the soul.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake (3) For the sake of his community and nation (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

State Has Obligation To Replace Pocono Park Bridge Very Promptly

Removal of the temporary "bailey bridge" connecting Routes 209 and 611 through Pocono Park is not an unexpected happening. The Corps of Engineers, who worked so splendidly during the flood emergency, put the bridge in only on a temporary basis.

The fact they responded so promptly helped solve not only a critical traffic problem, but ended a grave threat to many homes and business properties from Pocono Park region to Glen Brook Country Club who were cut off from the Stroud Township Fire headquarters on Rt. 611 side of the bridge site.

Now this threat is again in force. True, Stroud Firemen can and have asked Stroudsburg Fire Department to cover the Pocono Park, West Main St. and other built up sections of Stroud Township in that region. But the time element involved between report of a fire and arrival there under those conditions are lengthened considerably.

The Corps of Engineer cannot be censured for removal of the temporary structure. They made it clear the bridge was on temporary "loan" when it was installed.

The State Highway Department has given a new bridge at Pocono Park a spot on the priority list. They, of course, could not halt removal of the "bailey bridge" under existing arrangements.

Let us hope that the priority spot for the state's new crossing is high on the list, and that everything possible will be done to expedite early construction to ease the high potential of danger which exists without a bridge.

State Has Great Reservoir Of People Who, Despite Handicaps, Are Capable

Ordinarily we have no great enthusiasm for the special observance of a week dedicated to this or that, for we share the opinion of many that the custom has reached the ridiculous, but in the matter of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week we are all in favor of it.

Not that there should be need for only one week a year during which the general public, and employers especially, might be importuned to give work to those whose physical handicaps make it difficult for them to secure employment.

On the contrary, it ought to be a continuing thing because of the wealth of material available in the ranks of those who have suffered impairment of one sort or another.

There has been a growing realization throughout the nation that many a man and woman can perform efficiently a number of tasks formerly denied them, chiefly because of the lack of understanding by so many of us.

Pennsylvania has assumed an increasing share of the program of education, both for those who are handicapped mentally or physically and for those who can offer employment commensurate with the capabilities of the less fortunate ones.

Perhaps the increase among the ranks of the latter, many because of war wounds, has emphasized to a far greater degree than formerly the frequent amazing capacity of the physically handicapped to perform a full day's work side-by-side with those who are in full health and vigor.

Whatever the reason it is becoming more and more apparent that we have in our state and nation a great reservoir of men and women who, despite their handicaps, can measure up to many kinds of employment. That is one best reason for publicizing a special week of observance.

George Sokolsky Says...

Negative Factors Loom Too Large For Experience Of Professional Workers

Everything gets tightly organized these days and most folks are afraid to buck the organization. There are professional organizations for everything. Free adoption of children, without the sanction of the social workers, may lead to legal difficulties, with plausible stories in the newspapers about "Black Market Babies." But the social workers delay and confuse and cause heartache because they have a monopoly and all monopolists tend to be imperious. This is a broad condemnation and yet from what I hear from questionnaires persons anxious to add a child to their household, I think that I would prefer to deal with anyone rather than with the stone-faced social workers who have been given an unconditional monopoly for the placement of children who need homes. Some day, their right to maintain this monopoly will go up to the Supreme Court on strictly constitutional grounds.

I know of a family of two cultured persons who are economically in good shape and who know that they cannot have any children and who for more than two years have been seeking a child for adoption through the only agency open to them in New York where they live. Here such adoptions are controlled by religious affiliations which may or may not be a correct test. At any rate, unless one obeys the religious agency in charge, the adoption may not be legal and could lead to trouble.

No public agency adequately supervises the religious placement organizations with the result that there is a heart-breaking run-around. These organizations always say that there is a shortage of children for adoption and yet we constantly read stories about homeless children. It is explained that some of the homeless children cannot be placed because the parents who deserted them never signed the proper papers. There may be no known parents. In a word, the child suffers for the sins of the parents which may be a Biblical injunction on one place but is gainsaid by all the other injunctions about love, charity and pity which seem infinitely more important.

If there are good homes in which children can be placed, why keep them in deadly institutionalized orphanages where they are regimented until they are released into a free society? It would seem to be more civilized to let them grow up among parents and grandparents, even if such they be only by adoption, where they can have the usual social relationships and get the benefits of normal human associations. Why keep them in orphanages when they can be in homes?

I know of a fine family, the husband of which is a professional man of standing, who teaches in a university, whose wife is a lady of culture. They would give a good deal to be able to adopt a child and have tried hard to arrange for such an adoption. The years pass while the social workers investigate and question and delay and insist that they cannot find a suitable child, but there are children in the orphanages who would benefit if brought up in such an environment.

In whose interest are these social workers serving? If it is the child's, surely they ought to be able to find a child in or outside an orphanage who would benefit by adoption into such a family. If it is the community's, surely it is preferable to bring up free rather than regimented children. If it is the moral status of our society, it is sounder to send a child into a family where a child is fiercely desired and cannot be got by the usual biologic processes.

What reason can there be for all the red-tape and delay which the social workers devise? When the social worker is asked, one is generally told that he does not understand the intricacies of the problem. Any social problem can be made as intricate as we choose because there are always negative factors in everything. The trouble with professionals is that the negative factors loom too large in their experience. A little optimism might help them to understand that the negative factors ought not to dominate their thinking. Who, for instance, invented the myth that persons 40 and over ought not to adopt children when the life expectancy in this country runs about 69 years? Who is nowadays about 69?

Maurice Evans, noted Shakespearean actor, a producer of roudy low comedy and bellydances?... Yes, sir, he is the producer of "No Time For Sergeants," a gusty frolic in the armed services, entitling him to an award for the running broad jump of the year in the leap from Stratford-on-Avon to the bootcamps of the back-country... This writer knows nobody associated with the show and is buttering nobody's bread, but nearly died laffin at the comedy, and predicts it will be a Broadway sensation...

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

As a seventh son of a seventh father, a tea reader of note and a crystal-ball gazer of experience, we have given the case of President Eisenhower and the Campaign of 1956 a good going-over and come up with these prophesies: Look for the FARMSIDE CHAT as a powerful factor in the next election. Ike, strong enough for years of health and happiness among the coos and chickens, but retired from the burdens that would imperil him again, will hold the warm admiration of the public to a greater degree than ever. (2) There is dual magic in the names of Gettysburg and Ike. (3) Regarded by a sympathetic public as a wounded soldier, his counsel from the farm will have a terrific influence.

Ike can become a sort of Bernard Baruch on a milk stool instead of a park bench... A homespun sideline leader giving the country, through Farmside Chats, his best advice. Chief Justice Warren will be the candidate with Ike in his corner... Yeah, he says he would never take the nomination, but he got where he is through the GOP and can be had via the "Where's your gratitude?" route.

Dear Babe: All I know is that I have been on a lousy little guth-beat. But it's bigger than both of us. Many kisses, Juan.

Inside WASHINGTON Potsdam Papers Public Within Near Future?

Washington—Russia's claim that the 10-year-old Potsdam agreement settled Germany's frontiers may prompt the State department to make the Potsdam papers public within the near future.

The State department as well as members of Congress challenged the Soviet claim that the West German frontiers "have been marked out by the Potsdam conference and cannot be modified."

The official U. S. position on the matter is that Potsdam left the permanent adjustment of German's boundaries to a final peace settlement that has not yet taken place.

The State department has been preparing the Potsdam documents for publication for some time. If the release of the papers is expedited, they may become available almost simultaneously with the memoirs of former President Truman, who sat at the Potsdam conference and whose story starts in a national magazine this month.

The 1945 Potsdam agreement approved transfer to Soviet Russia of most of East Prussia, and placed part of East Germany under Polish rule. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who recently took up the matter with Moscow, also contends that only a peace treaty could determine Germany's boundaries.

Credit—You may think credit restrictions are tight now, but you haven't seen anything yet, according to federal fiscal authorities. Congress is to be asked to put tighter clamps on installment buying and loans.

The reason is that Americans are in debt $50 billion to loan companies, banks and stores. Although government economists concede times are good and that credit is necessary to a sound economy, they want to prevent the figure from spiraling.

To stem the tide of "a-dollar-down-and-50-cents-a-week" buying, laws will be sought to require small loan companies and merchants to report their outstanding loans and balances due to the Federal Reserve system. They are not now required to do that.

In addition the Federal Reserve system will take further steps to sop up loose money by bond selling, and banks will be asked to start a drive to collect loans which have been extended.

Government authorities are expected to ask better business groups to urge merchants in their areas to be more thorough on credit application investigations. The merchants themselves will be urged by the government to require higher down payments and give shorter periods in which to clean up the balance.

As a further step, stores will be asked to require that a customer have his account paid up from month to month before new charge purchases can be made.

Year-Around Job—If President Eisenhower ever decides to call a special session of Congress, he can hardly miss pleasing at least one Democrat—Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

Humphrey contends that Congress should be in session the year around, except for a breather from Aug. 1 to about mid-September.

He argues that "government today is a full-time business." He maintains that a recess from the end of July to January is clinging to tradition set when the country was less complex and the government was a smaller industry than it has become.

The Minnesotan says he thinks the President should call Congress back this autumn. However, most vacationing lawmakers—who are scattered around the world—do not want to come back to Washington until Jan. 1.

Try and Stop Me

The most independent taxi driver in San Francisco, insists Herb Caen, is the burly chap who drives his cab up to a big hotel every time a heavy storm breaks, and sits calmly reading a newspaper, refusing to allow any customers huddled under the marquee to enter his cab.

A circus proprietor once chartered this fellow's cab and climbed into the back with a baby elephant in tow. The driver demanded fifty cents more than the meter registered when the ride was over. "Dat's de law," he pointed out, "for carryin' a trunk."

Democrats Debt Free With Hopes Of $500,000 "Kitty"

Washington — Democratic National Committee leaders are hugging a joyful secret. Not only have all 1952 and 1954 campaign debts finally paid off, but hopes are high that a $500,000 nest egg will be accumulated by January 1 for next year's hectic presidential battle.

This puts the Committee in the best financial state it's been in in years.

The 30 members of the Committee's political organization group got that inside word at their strategy conference in Chicago this week.

Chiefly responsible for the happy news is Treasurer Matthew McCloskey.

When the Philadelphia publisher accepted that job early this year, the Committee was deeply in the red. Incoming money wasn't even meeting current expenses. McCloskey immediately launched a vigorous drive to raise funds by a series of $100-a-plate dinners in every section of the country.

His efforts have been so lucrative that they are going to be repeated on a larger scale this winter and next spring. The private goal is a $1,500,000 campaign kitty by August, when the Democrats hold their convention in Chicago.

That would be more than the National Committee has had at the start of a presidential race since the 1930's.

Note: An informal poll of the political organization subcommittee showed the 17 men and 13 women favoring Adlai Stevenson by a large margin, with Senator Estes Kefauver second, and Governor Averell Harriman a poor third. When questioned about the New Yorker's lack of strength, some of these National Committee members explained it was due to his age. One said, "After what happened to President Eisenhower, neither party will nominate anyone over 60. Harriman is 63, and would be 65 before he could take office. He's out of the race whether he knows it or not."

G.O.P. Politics — President Eisenhower's illness has had no adverse effect on National Chairman Leonard Hall's drive to raise a $1,500,000 campaign chest by the first of the year. He says there has been no slackening in the rate and size of contributions, and he is completely confident of reaching the total he's after... Frank McKay, former Michigan National Committee man, is booming Treasury Secretary George Humphrey for the Republican nomination. Says McKay, "Secretary Humphrey is the strongest and ablest man in Ike's cabinet. He is a man whom Ike has grown more and more attached to and to depend on for advice and help in running the Administration. The country needs a leader of Humphrey's outstanding stature"... Former Senator Harry Cain (R., Wash.) is increasingly serious about trying for a comeback next year. He's returning to his home state for a two-months stay largely to make a careful survey of his election chances. Cain is telling friends, "There is no job in the world I would rather have than my old seat in the Senate. If it looks like I have any chance at all in 1956, I'll run"... Senator Styles Bridges, N. H., chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, is firmly convinced President Eisenhower is definitely out of the picture as a candidate for a second term. Bridges is saying, "The President will not run again, and I am basing all my thinking and planning on that premise."

Demo Politics — Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson now has no doubts he will be back on the job in January. The Texan is confidently writing colleagues, "My recovery is going full blast, and the doctor assures me I'll be as fit as a fiddle when Congress reconvenes"... California's Attorney General Pat Brown is privately claiming he was offered second place on Adlai Stevenson's ticket, when they conferred in Illinois several weeks ago. Stevenson intimates say that's news to them... Tammany boss Carmine DeSapio is making a long trip to put in an election plug for a Democratic majority candidate. DeSapio is flying to San Francisco to be the main speaker at a big Columbus Day celebration, presided over by George Reilly, who is running in the non-partisan mayoralty race there as an avowed Democrat...

In Philadelphia, where another hot mayoralty scrap is in progress, the AFL has lined up with the CIO in supporting the Democratic ticket headed by Richardson Dilworth. The GOP had hoped the AFL would stay out of the fight because of previous wrangles with Democratic leaders... The intensified political situation is speeding up Senator Estes Kefauver's return from his around-the-world trip. He's now due back next week, from the Far East. Close friends expect that shortly thereafter the Tennesseean will toss his hat into the ring. Most of his advisers favor doing that before Stevenson makes his announcement around the middle of November... A sizzling squabble is in progress among "king-makers" of the National Young Democrats over its next president. Leading candidates are Neil McCall, Ala. and Dave Bunn, Colo. The former is being vigorously supported by Governor Folsom, while Bunn's race is being masterminded by former Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan.

S-D Day Director Named

—by H. G. Heller

CLEMENT J. SIPE, acting director of the Bureau of Highway Safety, has been named S-D Day Director for Pennsylvania by Governor George M. Leader. Mr. Sipe will head up the activities of the national effort to declare a moratorium on highway accidents.

Mr. Sipe announced today that S-D Day—Safe Driving Day—will come on December 1st this year, but will be preceded and followed by ten day periods of concentration on the gigantic effort for highway safety. The event has the complete support of President Eisenhower, and is aimed at bettering the national highway safety record by making all motorists conscious of safe driving practices.

Can Reduce In the words of Mr. Sipe, S-D Day's purpose "is to demonstrate again that traffic accidents can be greatly reduced when motorists and pedestrians fulfill their moral and civic responsibilities for safety."

Mr. Sipe, besides his work as acting director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Highway Safety, is well known in the national safety field. He is a member of the engineering sub-committee of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, and a member of the National Committee on Uniform Traffic Laws and Ordinances. He resides in Susquehanna Township, Dauphin County.

Mr. Sipe indicated that interested groups and individuals throughout the Commonwealth will be invited to lend their efforts to the S-D Day Drive. He said, "The challenge to every community will be: 'not a single traffic accident during the 24 hour period of December 1st—in daylight or darkness.' To that end, Mr. Sipe urged all groups throughout the state who wish to participate in the life saving event to get in contact with him at the Bureau of Highway Safety, Department of Revenue, Harrisburg.

Tragedy in Wonderland

Black headlines extinguish the shimmer of a star and millions are saddened. James Dean's journey into the shadows is complete with dark ironies common to tragedy.

There was Lupe Velez, the Latin rocket, who flared briefly, the illiterate suicide note she penned to her paramour had a dramatic poignancy beyond the imaginative skill of scenarioists. She wrote: "Harold: May god forgive you, and forgive me too but I prefer to take my life away and our baby's before I bring him and our shame or kill him. How could you, Harold, take such great love for me and our baby when all the time you didn't want us? I see no other way out for me, so goodbye and good luck to you, Love, Lupe."

After John Barrymore triumphed in his inaugural starring role, he confided to his brother: "I'm scared I hear thunder in the applause. A sign of storms to come." John's premonition was remarkably prophetic, of course. He heard the thunder and was destroyed by the storm... John, who was equipped with every artistic asset, lacked essential moral stamina. His dissipation was relentless, progressive and destructive. At one time he had a baronial estate in Hollywood that included a mere 55 rooms plus 6 swimming pools. Fourteen years later he died, a weary, wasted, and debt-ridden man, John, however, maintained a jaunty attitude to the end and never sought refuge in remorse or self-pity... Shortly before the finale, he cracked: "I remind myself of Grantland Rice's destitute ballplayer friend who told Rice that he had enough money to last him the rest of his life—provided he dropped dead on the spot."

James Dean's lookalike—who conveyed the same boyish charm and acting skill—was also the victim of a tragic fate. The subject of the dread coincidence was Robert Walker... Dean had been lugging the torch for over a year. The fiery burden compelled him to seek escape and challenge death in speeding vehicles. First it was motorcycles—then racing cars... Dean had struggled for many years. He literally starved or toiled as a busboy while searching for acting jobs. He did walk-ons and bit parts on TV. Then he won a small role in "The Immortalist" on Eway and attracted Hollywood's attention. Suddenly his ambition was fulfilled and stardom was a reality. And suddenly it ended with a sickening crash.

Tribute Paid To Depot For Service During And After Flood

11 Counties Give Scroll To Angster

POCONO MANOR—Col. Robert Angster, commander of the Tobyhanna Signal Depot, yesterday received a scroll containing a tribute from 11 counties in Northeastern Pennsylvania for the brilliant service represented by depot personnel during and after the Aug. 18-19 flood.

The tribute, which cited Col. Angster and his entire force, was presented by Montgomery F. Crowe, president, Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce during a luncheon held in honor of Col. Angster and depot personnel in the Laurel Room of The Inn here.

Mr. Crowe prefaced presentation of the scroll with a brief review of the tremendous service voluntarily rendered by the Signal Depot force ranging from rescue of some 750 persons to the movement by helicopter of some 400,000 pounds of food, material, drugs; transfers of medical and rescue personnel and the sadder task of moving out bodies of flood victims to central identification points.

Poconos Grateful
"We are grateful here in the Poconos to you, Col. Angster, and all of your force," said Crowe. "You have our personal thanks along with this scroll of honor from Northeastern Pennsylvania Industrial Development Commission."

Col. Angster said, "We are more pleased that we are some 2400 people with a heart."

The commander of the depot said only 35 people got to work the morning after the flood, but these people, together with officers on the post moved into action to bring relief to the devastated areas. In all the long and unending effort, there was not a single request for overtime, Col. Angster said.

"If we have done something for the good of the welfare of this community, we are happy," he said. "We are a part of the community. I live at Mount Pocono. I'm a member of the community and want to be thought of as such."

Pentagon Represented
Col. Charles C. Fell, Pentagon, Washington, representing the chief of the Signal Corps, thanked the people of the region for their reaction to whatever contribution the Signal Corps made during the flood emergency.

He also thanked people of the region who helped develop the depot which he said is the "key depot in the East."

"We are pleased to be a member of your family," he said.

Major James T. Hanlon of Scranton, also praised the Signal Corps for their great flood rescue and relief operations in this region. He gave the Corps of Engineers a glowing tribute for the work they did in helping clean up and restore flooded areas of Scranton.

Palbearers were Benton Keller, Joseph Houser, Richard Houser, John Staples, M. E. Leffler and Philip Farber Jr.

CONGRATULATIONS ADDED—Montgomery F. Crowe, president Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce congratulates Col. Police Minimize Reports Escapees Still In Area

REPORTS THAT two escaped mental patients may be in the vicinity of Mount Pocono last night were minimized by borough Police Chief William Post.

Still to be apprehended are Paul Cook, 34, Beaver Falls, and Richard Williams, 36, Johnstown, who escaped with four other inmates of the Fairview State Hospital for the criminally insane, Waymart, last Tuesday. The others are back in custody.

Chief Post said he travels throughout the Mount Pocono area each day, and there have been no indications that the escapees still are in the vicinity.

However, officials seemed certain they may have been in this area shortly after breaking out of the institution.

Car Thief
Dr. James P. Shovlin, hospital superintendent, reported that one of the escapees has a record as a car thief.

"He got out of the hospital once before," said Shovlin, "and had the habit of stealing a car and abandoning it after it ran out of gas."

A DeSoto sedan which was stolen in Honesdale the night of the break turned up the following night one mile north of Mount Pocono, authorities disclosed.

Late Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, thieves broke into Wagner's garage in Mount Pocono and made off with $26.25 in cash and a 1941 sedan, state police disclosed. About that same time, a set of license plates were removed from a car in the South Sterling area.

Negative Results
Authorities received a few calls from persons seeing a 1951 green sedan in the Mount Pocono area. But every check has turned out to be negative.

Dr. Shovlin said the hospital had two employees searching in the Greentown area earlier this week. However, this project was abandoned because of the distance from Fairview.

Urge Action By Governor On Parkway

POCONO MANOR — Northeastern Pennsylvania Industrial Development Commission yesterday named a special committee to call on Gov. Leader with a request that he take action on a Memorial Parkway Commission.

This development came at the end of a meeting of some 150 business, industrial, resort leaders with three Congressmen, three of Leader's cabinet members and three members of the Corps of Engineers on rehabilitation of the Pocono and Northeastern Pennsylvania flood-hit region.

Action on the Memorial Parkway developed when Howard L. Keiper, Stroudsburg offered a resolution calling for confirmation of the Parkway Commission consisting of R. LeRoy Dengler and Frank B. Michaels, both Stroudsburg.

Sen. William Z. Scott, R., Lansford noted there are no nominations for Parkway Commission before the Senate. He said as soon as such nominations appeared in the Senate they will be confirmed.

1941 Appropriation
Secretary of Highways Joseph J. Lawler, who would automatically be a member of the commission, said the Act of 1941 creating the parkway project, directed that a $100,000 appropriation be spent by the highway department on surveys. Some $3,000 of this was spent, Lawler said.

Then a 1945 act signed by then Gov. James Duff changed the name of the parkway to "Memorial Parkway" and apparently wiped out the appropriation, he said.

Lawler said not only does the highway department have no funds now, but there is some question about whether the change in the act left any commission.

Rep. Daniel Flood suggested NPIDC ask for a ruling from the attorney general on the status of the act.

Mr. Dengler said there is a commission and showed a letter from the Governor acknowledging he is a member serving until a successor is appointed.

Endorsed By Group
Victor Diehn, chairman of NPIDC, named Mr. Keiper chairman of the special parkway committee after the group endorsed the parkway as a sound project for the region. Other members are Bernie Eiler, NPIDC publicity chairman and Rep. Scott.

Yetter Bill Wins NPIDC Endorsement

POCONO MANOR — A bill introduced by Rep. Van D. Yetter, D., Monroe County which would appropriate about $500,000 to Department of Commerce to finance promotion of the resort, tourist and recreational industries of the state was endorsed here yesterday.

The Northeastern Pennsylvania Industrial Development Corporation have unanimous approval to a resolution presented by Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau calling for approval of the bill.

The resolution will be forwarded to Gov. Leader and the majority and minority leaders of both houses with a request they act favorably on the Yetter bill.

During his report on the administration's industrial development program and legislation to implement the plan, William Davlin, secretary of commerce, said the recreation, tourist and resort division of his department "has not been abandoned."

The staff is still there and functioning on inquiries, he said. What is planned now is appointment of someone to guide this facet of the department to aid better than a billion dollar industry, he said.

Search For Missing Bodies To Be Resumed Tomorrow

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN from three nearby Pennsylvania communities and one from New Jersey will renew search for missing flood victims along the Delaware River and Brodheads Creek Sunday.

Last Sunday over 100 volunteers gave up their week-end to come here, equipped with everything from power saws to power lifts to work on piles of debris where bodies might lodge.

This will be the fourth week the volunteers have joined state police here and local firemen who guided the well-equipped searchers all through the flood sector.

Last week they started at Belvidere, N.J. and worked up stream.

Companies who are veterans at this work from outside the area are located at Lansdale, Souderton and Quakertown. The Souderton mobile canteen rolls with the men, all along the search line and feeds every searcher without cost.

This week the Little Falls, N.J. firemen will again join in the search for bodies.

Phoenix Fire Company of Stroudsburg will assist state police in the guide details.

State Has Obligation To Replace Pocono Park Bridge Very Promptly

Removal of the temporary "bailey bridge" connecting Routes 209 and 611 through Pocono Park is an unexpected happening. The Corps of Engineers, who worked so splendidly during the flood emergency, put the bridge in only on a temporary basis.

The fact they responded so promptly helped solve not only a critical traffic problem, but ended a grave threat to many homes and business properties from Pocono Park region to Glen Brook Country Club who were cut off from the Stroud Township Fire headquarters on Rt. 611 side of the bridge site.

Now this threat is again in force. True, Stroud Firemen can and have asked Stroudsburg Fire Department to cover the Pocono Park, West Main St. and other built up sections of Stroud Township in that region.

State Has Great Reservoir Of People Who, Despite Handicaps, Are Capable

Ordinarily we have no great enthusiasm for the special observance of a week dedicated to this or that, for we share the opinion of many that the custom has reached the ridiculous, but in the matter of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week we are all in favor of it.

Not that there should be need for only one week a year during which the general public, and employers especially, might be importuned to give work to those whose physical handicaps make it difficult for them to secure employment.

On the contrary, it ought to be a continuing thing because of the wealth of material available in the ranks of those who have suffered impairment of one sort or another.

There has been a growing realization throughout the nation that many a man and woman can perform efficiently a number of tasks formerly denied them, chiefly because of the lack of understanding by so gion. But the time element involved between report of a fire and arrival there under those conditions are lengthened considerably.

The Corps of Engineer cannot be censured for removal of the temporary structure. They made it clear the bridge was on temporary "loan" when it was installed.

The State Highway Department has given a new bridge at Pocono Park a spot on the priority list. They, of course, could not halt removal of the "bailey bridge" under existing arrangements.

Let us hope that the priority spot for the state's new crossing is high on the list, and that everything possible will be done to expedite early construction to ease the high potential of danger which exists without a bridge.

many of us. Pennsylvania has assumed an increasing share of the program of education, both for those who are handicapped mentally or physically and for those who can offer employment commensurate with the capabilities of the less fortunate ones.

Perhaps the increase among the ranks of the latter, many because of war wounds, has emphasized to a far greater degree than formerly the frequent amazing capacity of the physically handicapped to perform a full day's work side-by-side with those who are in full health and vigor.

Whatever the reason it is becoming more and more apparent that we have in our state and nation a great reservoir of men and women who, despite their handicaps, can measure up to many kinds of employment. That is one best reason for publicizing a special week of observance.

Negative Factors Loom Too Large For Experience Of Professional Workers

Everything gets tightly organized these days and most folks are afraid to buck the organizations. There are professional organizations for everything. Free adoption of children, without the sanction of the social workers, may lead to legal difficulties with plaguing stories in the newspapers about "Black Market Babies." But the social workers delay and confuse and cause heartache because they have a monopoly and all monopolists tend to be imperious. This is a broad condemnation and yet from what I hear from questionnaires returned persons anxious to add a child to their household, I think that I would prefer to deal with anyone rather than with the stone-faced social workers who have been given an unconstitutional monopoly for the placement of children who need homes. Some day, their right to maintain this monopoly will go up to the Supreme Court on strictly constitutional grounds.

I know of a family of two cultured persons who are economically in good shape who know that they cannot have any children and who for more than two years have been seeking a child for adoption through the only agency open to them in New York where they live. Here such adoptions are controlled by religious affiliations which may or may not be a correct test. At any rate, unless one obeys the religious agency in charge, the adoption may not be legal and could lead to trouble.

No public agency adequately supervises the religious placement organizations with the result that there is a heart-breaking run-around. These organizations always say that there is a shortage of children for adoption and yet we constantly read stories about homeless children. It is explained that some of the homeless children cannot be placed because the parents who deserted them never signed the proper papers. There may be no known parents. In a word, the child suffers for the sins of the parents which may be a Biblical injunction on one place but is gainsaid by all the other injunctions about love, charity and pity which seem infinitely more important.

If there are good homes in which children can be placed, why keep them in deadly institutionalized orphanages where they are regimented until they are released into a free society? It would seem to be more civilized to let them grow up among parents and grandparents, even if such they be only by adoption, where they can have the usual social relationships and get the benefits of normal human associations. Why keep them in orphanages when they can be in homes?

I know of a fine family, the husband of which is a professional man of standing, who teaches in a university, whose wife is a lady of culture. They would give a good deal to be able to adopt a child and have tried hard to arrange for such an adoption. The years pass while the social workers investigate and question and delay and insist that they cannot find a suitable child, but there are children in the orphanages who would benefit if brought up in such an environment.

In whose interest are these social workers serving? If it is the child's, surely they ought to be able to find a child in or outside the orphanage who would benefit by adoption into such a family. If it is the community's, surely it is preferable to bring up free rather than regimented children. If it is the moral status of our society, it is sounder to send a child into a family where a child is fiercely desired and cannot be got by the usual biologic processes.

What reason can there be for all the red-tape and delay which the social workers devise? When the social worker is asked, one is generally told that he does not understand the intricacies of the problem. Any social problem can be made as intricate as we choose because there are always negative factors in everything. The trouble with professionals is that the negative factors loom too large in their experience. A little optimism might help them to understand that the negative factors do not tend to dominate their thinking. Who, for instance, invented the myth that persons 40 and over ought not to adopt children when the life expectancy in this country runs about 69 years? Who is nowadays too old?

Inside WASHINGTON Potsdam Papers Public Within Near Future?

Washington—Russia's claim that the 10-year-old Potsdam agreement settled Germany's frontiers may prompt the State department to make the Potsdam papers public within the near future.

The State department as well as members of Congress challenged the Soviet claim that the West German frontiers "have been marked out by the Potsdam conference and cannot be modified."

The official U. S. position on the matter is that Potsdam left the permanent adjustment of Germany's boundaries to a final peace settlement that has not yet taken place.

The State department has been preparing the Potsdam documents for publication for some time. If the release of the papers is expedited, they may become available almost simultaneously with the memoirs of former President Truman, who sat at the Potsdam conference and whose story starts in a national magazine this month.

The 1945 Potsdam agreement approved transfer to Soviet Russia of most of East Prussia, and placed part of East Germany under Polish rule. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, who recently took up the matter with Moscow, also contends that only a peace treaty could determine Germany's boundaries.

Credit—You may think credit restrictions are tight now, but you haven't seen anything yet. According to federal fiscal authorities, Congress is to be asked to put tighter clamps on installment buying and loans.

The reason is that Americans are in debt $50 billion to loan companies, banks and stores. Although government economists concede times are good and that credit is necessary to a sound economy, they want to prevent the figure from spiraling.

To stem the tide of "a-dollar-down-and-50-cents-a-week" buying, laws will be sought to require small loan companies and merchants to report their outstanding loans and balances due to the Federal Reserve system. They are not now required to do that.

In addition the Federal Reserve system will take further steps to sop up loose money by bond selling, and banks will be asked to start a drive to collect loans which have been extended.

Government authorities are expected to ask better business groups to urge merchants in their areas to be more thorough on credit application investigations. The merchants themselves will be urged by the government to require higher down payments and give shorter periods in which to clean up the balance.

As a further step, stores will be asked to require that a customer have his account paid up from month to month before new charge purchases can be made.

Year-Around Job—If President Eisenhower ever decides to call a special session of Congress, he can hardly miss pleasing at least one Democrat—Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota.

Humphrey contends that Congress should be in session the year around, except for a breather from Aug. 1 to about mid-September. He argues that "government today is a full-time business." He maintains that a recess from the end of July to January is clinging to tradition set when the country was less complex and the government was a smaller industry than it has become.

The Minnesotaan says he thinks the President should call Congress back this autumn. However, most vacationing lawmakers—who are scattered around the world—do not want to come back to Washington until Jan. 1.

Democrats Debt Free With Hopes Of $500,000 "Kitty"

Washington — Democratic National Committee leaders are hugging a joyful secret.

Not only have all 1952 and 1954 campaign debts finally paid off, but hopes are high that a $500,000 nest egg will be accumulated by January 1 for next year's hectic presidential battle.

This puts the Committee in the best financial state it's been in in years.

The 20 members of the Committee's political organization group got that inside word at their strategy conference in Chicago this week.

Chiefly responsible for the happy news is Treasurer Matthew McCloskey.

When the Philadelphia publisher accepted that job early this year, the Committee was deeply in the red. Incoming money wasn't even meeting current expenses. McCloskey immediately launched a vigorous drive to raise funds by a series of $100-a-plate dinners in every section of the country.

His efforts have been so lucrative that they are going to be repeated on a larger scale this winter and next spring. The private goal is a $1,500,000 campaign kitty by August, when the Democrats hold their convention in Chicago.

That would be more than the National Committee has had at the start of a presidential race since the 1930's.

Note: An informal poll of the political organization subcommittee showed the 17 men and 13 women favoring Adlai Stevenson by a large margin, with Senator Estes Kefauver second, and Governor Averell Harriman a poor third. When questioned about the New Yorker's lack of strength, some of these National Committee members explained it was due to his age. One said, "After what happened to President Eisenhower, neither party will nominate anyone over 60. Harriman is 63, and would be 65 before he could take office. He's out of the race whether he knows it or not."

G.O.P. Politics — President Eisenhower's illness has had no adverse effect on National Chairman Leonard Hall's drive to raise a $1,500,000 campaign chest by the first of the year. He says there has been no slackening in the rate and size of contributions, and he is completely confident of reaching the total he's after... Frank McKay, former Michigan National Committee man, is booming Treasury Secretary George Humphrey for the Republican nomination. Says McKay, "Secretary Humphrey is the strongest and ablest man in Ike's cabinet. He is a man whom Ike has grown more and more attached to and to depend on for advice and help in running the Administration. The country needs a leader of Humphrey's outstanding stature"... Former Senator Harry Cain (R., Wash.) is increasingly serious about trying for a comeback next year. He's returning to his home state for a two-months stay largely to make a careful survey of his election chances. Cain is telling friends, "There is no job in the world I would rather have than my old seat in the Senate. If it looks like I have any chance at all in 1956, I'll run"... Senator Styles Bridges, N. H., chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, is firmly convinced President Eisenhower is definitely out of the picture as a candidate for a second term. Bridges is saying, "The President will not run again, and I am basing all my thinking and planning on that premise."

Demo Politics — Senate Leader Lyndon Johnson now has no doubts he will be back on the job in January. The Texan is confidently writing colleagues, "My recovery is going full blast, and the doctor assures me I'll be as fit as a fiddle when Congress reconvenes"... California's Attorney General Pat Brown is privately claiming he was offered second place on Adlai Stevenson's ticket, when they conferred in Illinois several weeks ago. Stevenson intimates say that's news to them... Tammany boss Carmine DeSapio is making a long trip to put in an election plug for a Democratic mayoralty candidate. DeSapio is flying to San Francisco to be the main speaker at a big Columbus Day celebration, presided over by George Reilly, who is running in the non-partisan mayoralty race there as an avowed Democrat...

In Philadelphia, where another hot mayoralty scrap is in progress, the AFL has lined up with the CIO in supporting the Democratic ticket headed by Richardson Dilworth. The GOP had hoped the AFL would stay out of the fight because of previous wrangles with Democratic leaders... The intensified political situation is speeding up Senator Estes Kefauver's return from his around-the-world trip. He's now due back next week... A sizzling upsurge in progress among "king-makers" of the National Young Democrats over its next president. Leading candidates are Neil McCall, Ala. and Dave Bunn, Colo. The former is being vigorously supported by Governor Folsom, while Bunn's race is being masterminded by former Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan.

S-D Day Director Named

—by H. G. Heller

CLEMENT J. SIPE, acting director of the Bureau of Highway Safety, has been named S-D Day Director for Pennsylvania.

Day Director for Pennsylvania by Governor M. Leander. Mr. Sipe will head up the statewide activities of the national effort to declare a moratorium on highway accidents.

Mr. Sipe announced today that S-D Day—Safe Driving Day—will come on December 1st of this year, but will be preceded and followed by ten day periods of concentration on the gigantic effort for highway safety. The event has the complete support of President Eisenhower, and is aimed at bettering the national highway safety record by making all motorists conscious of safe driving practices.

Can Reduce — In the words of Mr. Sipe, S-D Day's purpose "is to demonstrate again that traffic accidents can be greatly reduced when motorists and pedestrians fulfill their moral and civic responsibilities for safety."

Mr. Sipe, besides his work as acting director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Highway Safety, is well known in the national safety field. He is a member of the engineering sub-committee of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, and a member of the National Committee on Uniform Traffic Laws and Ordinances. He resides in Susquehanna Township, Dauphin County.

Mr. Sipe indicated that interested groups and individuals throughout the Commonwealth will be invited to lend their efforts to the S-D Day Drive. He said, "The challenge to every community will be: 'not a single traffic accident during the 24-hour period of December 1st in daylight or darkness.'" To that end, Mr. Sipe urged all groups throughout the state who wish to participate in the life saving event to get in contact with him at the Bureau of Highway Safety, Department of Revenue, Harrisburg.

On Broadway

—by Walter Winchell

Tragedy in Wonderland

Black headlines extinguish the shimmer of a star and millions are saddened. James Dean's journey into the shadows is replete with dark ironies common to tragedy. There is reason to believe his reckless hobbies were motivated by the grandest emotion — love. Dean had been lugging the torch for over a year. The fiery burden compelled him to seek escape and challenge death in speeding vehicles. First it was motorcycles — then racing cars... Dean had struggled for many years. He literally starved or toiled as a busboy while searching for acting jobs. He did walk-ons and bit parts on tv. Then he won a small role in "The Immortalist" on Broadway and attracted Hollywood's attention. Suddenly his ambition was a reality. And suddenly it ended with a sickening crash.

James Dean's lookalike—who conveyed the same boyish charm and acting skill—was also the victim of a tragic fate. The subject of the dread coincidence was Robert Walker... He was a happy husband and father while he was a professional failure. After Walker was embraced by that bitch goddess known as success—his terrors began. The destruction of his marriage was followed by an emotional collapse—and then a shocking, accidental death. One of his friends later said: "Success was responsible for Bob's failure."

After John Barrymore triumphed in his inaugural starring role, he confided to his brother: "I'm scared. I hear thunder in the applause. A sign of storms to come." John's premonition was remarkably prophetic, of course. He heard the thunder and was destroyed by the storm... John, who was equipped with every artistic asset, lacked essential moral stamina. His dissipation was relentless, progressive and destructive. At one time he had a baronial estate in Hollywood that included a mere 55 rooms plus 6 swimming pools. Fourteen years later he died a weary, wasted and debt-ridden man. John, however, maintained a jaunty attitude to the end and never sought refuge in remorse or self-pity... Shortly before the finale, he cracked: "I remind myself of Grantland Rice's destitute ballplayer friend who told Rice that he had enough money to last him the rest of his life—provided he dropped dead on the spot."

Tribute Paid To Depot For Service During And After Flood

11 Counties Give Scroll To Angster

POCONO MANOR—Col. Robert Angster, commander of the Tobyhanna Signal Depot, yesterday received a scroll containing a tribute from 11 counties in Northeastern Pennsylvania for the brilliant service represented by depot personnel during and after the Aug. 18-19 flood.

The tribute, which cited Col. Angster and his entire force, was presented by Montgomery F. Crowe, president, Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce during a luncheon held in honor of Col. Angster and depot personnel in the Laurel Room of The Inn here.

Mr. Crowe prefaced presentation of the scroll with a brief review of the tremendous service voluntarily rendered by the Signal Depot force ranging from rescue of some 750 persons to the movement by helicopter of some 400,000 pounds of food, material, drugs; transfer of medical and rescue personnel and the sadder task of moving out bodies of flood victims to central identification points.

Poconos Grateful
"We are grateful here in the Poconos to you, Col. Angster, and all of your force," said Crowe. "You have our personal thanks along with this scroll of honor from Northeastern Pennsylvania Industrial Development Commission."

Col. Angster said, "We are more pleased that we are some 2,400 people with a heart."

The commander of the depot said only 35 people got to work the morning after the flood, but these people, together with officers on the post moved into action to bring relief to the devastated areas. In all the long and unending effort, there was not a single request for overtime, Col. Angster said.

"If we have done something for the good of the welfare of this community, we are happy," he said. "We are a part of the community. I live at Mount Pocono. I'm a member of the community and want to be thought of as such."

Pentagon Represented
Col. Charles C. Feil, Pentagon, Washington, representing the chief of the Signal Corps, thanked the people of the region for their reaction to whatever contribution the Signal Corps made during the flood emergency.

He also thanked people of the region who helped develop the depot which he said is the "key depot in the East."

"We are pleased to be a member of your family," he said. Major James T. Hanlon of Scranton, also praised the Signal Corps for their great flood rescue and relief operations in this region. He gave the Corps of Engineers a glowing tribute for the work they did in helping clean up and restore flooded areas of Scranton.

Anna Frederick Rites Conducted

THE FUNERAL of Mrs. Anna E. Frederick, 93, Main St., Delaware Water Gap, was held at 2 p.m. Friday at the Lanterman funeral home, with Rev. James Palm officiating. Burial was in Delaware Water Gap Cemetery. Pallbearers were Benton Keller, Joseph Houser, Richard Houser, John Staples, M. E. Leffler and Philip Farber Jr.

CONGRATULATIONS ADDED—Montgomery F. Crowe, president Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce congratulates Col. Police Minimize Reports Escapees Still In Area

REPORTS THAT two escaped mental patients may be in the vicinity of Mount Pocono last night were minimized by borough Police Chief William Post.

Still to be apprehended are Paul Cook, 34, Beaver Falls, and Richard Williams, 36, Johnstown, who escaped with four other inmates of the Farview State Hospital for the criminally insane, Waymart, last Tuesday. The others are back in custody.

Chief Post said he travels throughout the Mount Pocono area each day, and there have been no indications that the escapees still are in the vicinity.

However, officials seemed certain they may have been in this area shortly after breaking out of the institution.

Car Thief
Dr. James P. Shovlin, hospital superintendent, reported that one of the escapees has a record as a car thief.

"He got out of the hospital once before," said Shovlin, "and had the habit of stealing a car and abandoning it after it ran out of gas."

A DeSoto sedan which was stolen in Honesdale the night of the break turned up the following night one mile north of Mount Pocono, authorities disclosed.

Late Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, thieves broke into Wagner's garage in Mount Pocono and made off with $26.25 in cash and a 1941 sedan, state police disclosed. About that same time, a set of license plates were removed from a car in the South Sterling area.

Negative Results
Authorities received a few calls from persons seeing a 1951 green sedan in the Mount Pocono area. But every check has turned out to be negative.

Dr. Shovlin said the hospital had two employees searching in the Greentown area earlier this week. However, this project was abandoned because of the distance from Farview.

Urge Action By Governor On Parkway

POCONO MANOR—Northeastern Pennsylvania Industrial Development Commission yesterday named a special committee to call on Gov. Leader with a request that he take action on a Memorial Parkway Commission.

This development came at the end of a meeting of some 150 business, industrial, resort leaders with three Congressmen, three of Leader's cabinet members and three members of the Corps of Engineers on rehabilitation of the Pocono and Northeastern Pennsylvania flood-hit region.

Action on the Memorial Parkway developed when Howard L. Keiper, Stroudsburg offered a resolution calling for confirmation of the Parkway Commission consisting of R. LeRoy Deng'er and Frank B. Michaels, both Stroudsburg.

Sen. William Z. Scott, R., Lansford noted there are no nominations for Parkway Commission before the Senate. He said as soon as such nominations appeared in the Senate they will be confirmed.

1941 Appropriation
Secretary of Highways Joseph J. Lawler, who would automatically be a member of the commission, said the Act of 1941 creating the parkway project, directed that a $100,000 appropriation be spent by the highway department on surveys. Some $3,000 of this was spent, Lawler said.

Then a 1945 act signed by then Gov. James Duff changed the name of the parkway to "Memorial Parkway" and apparently wiped out the appropriation, he said. Lawler said not only does the highway department have no funds now, but there is some question about whether the change in the act left any commission.

Rep. Daniel Flood suggested NPIDC ask for a ruling from the attorney general on the status of the act.

Mr. Deng'er said there is a commission and showed a letter from the Governor acknowledging he is a member serving until a successor is appointed.

Endorsed By Group
Victor Diehm, chairman of NPIDC, named Mr. Keiper chairman of the special parkway committee after the group endorsed the parkway as a sound project for the region. Other members are Bernie Eiler, NPIDC publicity chairman and Rep. Scott.

Yetter Bill Wins NPIDC Endorsement

POCONO MANOR—A bill introduced by Rep. Van D. Yetter, D., Monroe County which would appropriate about $500,000 to Department of Commerce to finance promotion of the resort, tourist and recreational industries of the state was endorsed here yesterday.

The Northeastern Pennsylvania Industrial Development Corporation have unanimous approval to a resolution presented by Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau calling for approval of the bill.

The resolution will be forwarded to Gov. Leader and the majority and minority leaders of both houses with a request they act favorably on the Yetter bill.

During his report on the administration's industrial development program and legislation to implement the plan, William Davlin, secretary of commerce, said the recreation, tourist and resort division of his department "has not been abandoned."

The staff is still there and functioning on inquiries, he said. What is planned now is appointment of someone to guide this facet of the department to aid better than a billion dollar industry, he said.

State Pledges Early Work On Pocono Bridge

SECRETARY OF Highways Joseph J. Lawler yesterday said a new bridge across Pocono Creek at Pocono Park has been placed on a priority list for construction as soon as possible.

His statement was made in response to contacts made with the secretary by Sheriff Jacob Altemose and Rep. Van D. Yetter regarding removal of the Corps of Engineers "Bailey bridge" across the stream.

Placed across the stream to connect Routes 209 and 611 after the Aug. 18-19 flood wiped out the former structure, the "Bailey bridge" was installed on a temporary basis by the Corps of Engineers.

Razing Begun
The Corps of Engineers ended that temporary situation yesterday when contractors started tearing apart the structure as well as one on Route 45000 connecting the two highways from Shafer's school house to a point near Wigwam Park.

Both structures, engineers advised, are critically needed near Yardley, Pa. Highway officials were unable to hold them any longer.

Altemose and Yetter appealed to Lawler yesterday. He advised the state could no longer hold the bridges, but that plans for permanent structures are being speeded on a priority list.

Fire Protection
Stroud Township officials and fire company members appealed for some relief in the matter because the lack of a bridge cuts off Middle Stroud fire headquarters.

Search For Missing Bodies To Be Resumed Tomorrow

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN from three nearby Pennsylvania communities and one from New Jersey will renew search for missing flood victims along the Delaware River and Brodheads Creek Sunday.

Last Sunday over 100 volunteers gave up their week-end to come there, equipped with everything from power saws to power lifts to work on piles of debris where bodies might lodge.

This will be the fourth week the volunteers have joined state police here and local firemen who guided the well-equipped searchers all through the flood sector.

Last week they started at Belvidere, N.J. and worked up stream. Companies who are veterans at this work from outside the area are located at Lansdale, Souderton and Quakertown. The Souderton mobile canteen rolls with the men, all along the search line and feeds every searcher without cost.

Future activities will be discussed at the next meeting Friday, Oct. 14 at Brodheads ville Inn.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

One of the occupational hazards of this job is the fact that you're very likely to get sleepy at programs which follow very substantial luncheons. Particularly on a warm and muggy afternoon when feels more like spring than October.

Rather embarrassing nodding away, but not half so embarrassing as realizing that you've probably missed a very important point in the speech in between nods.

But that's not as sad as missing it altogether, after you've spent the whole week working for it—which is what happened to Mrs. Horace Walters at Presbyterian yesterday. Developed such a cold she couldn't speak, let alone preside.

However I was happy to learn that she heard all about it first hand from Mrs. Elwood Grant, who filled in for her. And not only that but got some of those beautiful flowers which decorated the church.

They had a wonderful attendance, considering the day—and it made a pleasant break, slipping through the alley to Grace Lutheran Church for lunch and then back again. Those two churches are ideally located for inter-church cooperation, and they certainly had it yesterday.

What we need today is a little cooperation from the weather man.

St. Matthew's PTA To Begin Year With Supper

St. Matthew's Parochial School Parent-Teachers Association will feature a ham supper for their opening meeting of the year to be held Monday night at 6:30 in the school auditorium. Members are asked to bring their own table service. The supper will be catered by Peter Margretto, assisted by George Forster and Ed Yost.

At the program which will follow the supper, Rev. Andrew W. Maloney, of Hazleton, will speak on "Problems of the Emotional Child". All parents and friends of the school are invited.

Clearview PTA Begins Year Monday

The Clearview Parent Teachers Association will launch its new year's activities with a meeting on Monday night at 8 p. m. at the school. Instead of the open house usually scheduled for the first meeting, there will be a guided tour of the school so that parents can become familiar with their child's routine.

An open discussion of school procedure will follow the tour. The new officers will be introduced and the chairman of the various committees will be named.

All parents are invited to attend the meeting, with a special invitation issued to the parents of kindergarten children and those attending Clearview School for the first time.

Refreshments and a social hour will follow the program.

Presbyterial Meet In East Stroudsburg

The Fall meeting of the Lehigh Presbyterial, held yesterday afternoon at the East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, brought together 155 women representing more than 13 churches of the Presbytery.

Devotions and program on the theme, "Lord, I Will Follow Thee," were combined with training sessions and a fellowship luncheon, served by the Woman's Guild of Grace Lutheran Church in the Grace Church dining room.

Miss Betty Jane Patton, a member of the town and country church department of National Missions, was the chief speaker telling of her work at Warren Wilson Junior College in the south, and also outlining some of the problems and rewards of rural churches.

The pioneers who in their westward march planted the twin seeds of churches and schools for their churches need to be paralleled by church pioneers of today. In Warren Wilson College, located in the mountains of the south, the young people, who otherwise would have no opportunity for education, learn to achieve a more abundant life not only on the material but also the spiritual side, she said.

Individual children and their achievements made her story a personal one. The changing population trends, leaving some rural churches without congregations to support them and pushing other rural churches into the center of mushroom city developments, also need the prayers and gifts of the whole church.

She hailed interdenominational cooperation in areas where several churches combine for more effective service, and the uniting of all church women in a community for common goals. She cited the dinner served by the Lutheran women as an example of inter-church cooperation, and praised the work of churchwomen throughout the disaster period here.

Another highlight of the afternoon was the report given by Mrs. J. Russell Craig, Presbyterian president, and Mrs. Voris Latschaw on the dedication of the rugs given to the United Nations by Presbyterian Women of the United States of America. The dedication was held September 13 with high-ranking officials of the United Nations and of the church present. The rugs were woven by the women of Ecuador.

The sessions began at 10 a. m. in the Presbyterian Church sanctuary with a meditation led by Mrs. Nathaniel Sterner, organ recital by Mrs. Loring Cramer, and a solo by Mrs. Harold Hosler.

Mrs. Elwood Grant welcomed the group in the absence of Mrs. Horace G. Walters, president of the East Stroudsburg Auxiliary, who was ill. Mrs. J. L. Kral presented the literature and material available for study groups and leaders.

Individual training sessions for various interest groups were held in separate rooms in the church before they adjourned for the luncheon in Grace Lutheran Church.

Returning to the host church for the afternoon session, which was opened by devotions led by Mrs. A. A. Holbrook, the members also heard a dramatic skit arranged by Mrs. Jesse Flory, on opportunity gifts. These gifts, over and above the regular missionary budget, will this year be used for schools in Kentucky and Alaska, and the hospital at Miraj, India. Mrs. John A. LeBar and Mrs. Frederick Thomas assisted Mrs. Flory in her presentation.

Penny Supper Tonight

Saylorsburg—A penny supper will be held from 4 to 8 p. m. today at the Blue Ridge Fire Hall, Saylorsburg, sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary. The menu will include turkey, ham and meat loaf, also home-made pies and cakes.

If my jaws ache today, it's probably because I had such a wonderful time talking yesterday . . . and with such interesting people.

Around noon, Albert Hensinger of Allentown dropped by to tell me that everything was set for a radio program with Orma LaBar, his daughter, Gladys LaBar Bittenbender, and her husband, Ernie, who are pictured in the current Saturday Evening Post's "The Face of America" series.

Mr. Hensinger is representative in this area of the Curtis Circulation Department, subsidiary of the Curtis Publishing Company which gives the world such truly fine magazines as the aforementioned Post, Holiday, (which boasts a beautiful picture of Bushkill Falls on the October cover), Esquire, Coronet, Jack and Jill, and others almost too numerous to mention—available, incidentally, on our Wyckoff newsstand. As are most persons in public relations work, he is easy to meet, pleasant to converse with, and so enthusiastic about his job you cannot help but be enthused along with him.

Introducing him to Mr. Wyckoff in our center aisle, I learned that even when "Papa" was in Europe he was reading Saturday Evening Post. It was in London, I believe, that he read the very splendid article on the city of Allentown which appeared several weeks ago.

Later another visitor dropped into the office . . . John Hartzell, who now resides in Texas, but is known to many of you as a former reporter for the Daily Record. John left Monroe County as this area's first draftee, having held the fateful number drawn by the late President Roosevelt from that very important goldfish bowl, some many years ago. With World War II and his service in the Pacific he was in the background, John has carved out an interesting career in public relations work too, and all the pleasant things I said about Mr. Hensinger apply to him.

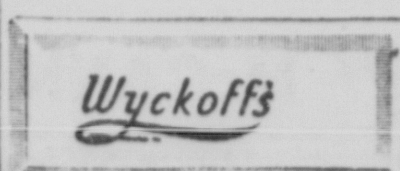

I'm not exactly sure whether or not I earned my salary on Thursday . . . but I had a wonderful time! What is more, I'm in favor of interesting people dropping by any time. As a matter of fact, we at Wyckoff's love people . . . and come to think of it, we've never met any that aren't pretty fascinating.

When I wasn't chatting in my office, seems that I was tormenting the merchandise manager in his. "Just what," I asked, "do we promote now—anything new?"

"Why naturally," he said. "Our new 37¢ prints from Pacific Mills! They're fact tagged and just about the finest buy for the money any shopper can ever hope to locate. Go take a look."

I did . . . and Holt is right. They are real buys, with many uses. When I see fabrics of this quality so inexpensively marked, I wish with all my heart I were a homebody who could sew rather than a working gal who feels she's done well when she's put a reasonably straight hem in a towel. As for the prints themselves, the best description I can muster at the moment is "Prints Charming." See for yourselves, you Cinderellas with magic needles!

Holt also reminds me that all of our warm-as-toast Woolrich garb for men is now on display, and that Margaret LaBar's department has a big new shipment of glamorous hassocks "with tags, without legs" . . . and, ad lib Edna Harmon of the jewelry department, "probably with bow legs." In any case a Wyckoff hassock "has-socks appeal!"

RILEY

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

"JUMBO" DALESSIO, owner-manager of East Stroudsburg's Monroe Music Co., stepped out and got himself some national recognition as the final World Series game the other day—not to mention a guarded treasurer. "Jumbo" a Dodger fan since way back, right now is the possessor of a baseball cap, one that he might let you peek at through the partially open door of his safe, that is if you are a personal friend and have been cleared by three major committees formed to investigate something or other.

To relate the story, as it was told to me, we'll have to turn back the desk calendar to Tuesday, October 4 of this year, and this week, Dalessio, as befitting a Dodger fan of his calibre, was seated in a box behind home plate at Yankee Stadium as young Johnny Podres pitched the Dodgers to a 2-0 victory and to their first World Series championship. To say that the East Stroudsburg businessman was calm might be a slight exaggeration of the truth.

But, the hero of our story today did manage to keep his seat for the biggest part of eight innings. In the Yankee half of the ninth he eased out of his box as Podres ran halfway to first base while tossing out Bill Skowron. "Jumbo" walked to the third base side of the screen and threw one leg over the railing as Bob Cerv skied harmlessly to "Sandy" Amoros in short left field. Dalessio hung on the railing as Podres worked the count to two balls and two strikes on Elston Howard and then leaped on the field as the Yankee left fielder sent a grounder to "Pee Wee" Reese.

"Jumbo" with his blinding speed, raced straight to the pitching mound as Gil Hodges stretched wide of the bag at first base to take the throw by Reese that actually made the Brooklyn victory official. Never once thinking that Reese might throw the ball wildly, our hero galloped to the mound. The only people there before him were catcher Roy Campanella and third baseman Don Hoak. While Campy was lifting Podres into the air, Dalessio grabbed the hurler's cap as a souvenir.

It was at this point that other Dodger players rushed wildly toward Podres and fans poured out of the stands. In his haste to grab the winning hurler's cap, the garment fell out of the local business man's hand. But, as the wild mob rushed toward the pitching rubber, "Jumbo" bent down and picked up Johnny's cap once again and crammed it into the safety of his pocket.

While picking Podres' hat from the ground our leading man became the target of cameras from all angles. His picture appeared in both the Daily News and Daily Mirror and made its rounds of the various television news shows on Tuesday night. But, now that the excitement has died down and things are returning to a state of normalcy, "Jumbo" guards carefully his valuable souvenir of the first Brooklyn World Series victory in history.

The cap is kept in the safety of a strong safe at the Monroe Music Co. office and undoubtedly will undergo such secret treatment for many moons. This is the peak of success for a Brooklyn fan. The success of which every Dodger rooter dreams from the day he first learns that there is a spot known as Brooklyn within the confines of the United States.

Dalessio survived the jostling he received around the mound with nothing more serious than a few bruises. But, the big smile and the pride he exhibits whenever his treasured possession is mentioned indicates that it was worth much more than the trouble it actually took to separate Podres from the cap which perched atop the New Yorker's locks during the 1955 season. Green Perut, Flatbush, Atlantic Ave., and Bay Ridge don't have a corner on all the World Series happiness.

There's plenty of sunshine right on Washington St., right where it turns to meet the traffic light at S. Courtland. And maybe, if you've washed your hands, scraped the bottom of your shoes at the door and promise not to use any profanity in its presence, you too can feel the material which goes into construction of the baseball caps worn by the Brooklyn Dodgers. But, for your own safety, don't try to feel the material until you receive official permission from "Jumbo." It was a tough fight, Mom—but we won.

East Stroudsburg Squad To Invade Lehigh Valley Tonight

Cavaliers Seek Fourth Straight Win

AN INJURY riddled and illness plagued East Stroudsburg High football team will attempt to land its fourth straight favorable decision of the current season, without defeat, when the Cavaliers battle Lehigh Valley, on the latter's home gridiron today. Kickoff time has been set for 8 p. m.

Lehigh Valley, winner of two of three games, will present tough opposition for the Cavaliers who have taken the measure of Slatington, 19-7; Pen Argyl, 7-0; and Bangor, 20-13. The Indians defeated Stroudsburg, 13-6, rolled over Summit Hill and fell before Slatington, 13-6.

Captain Jack Kist announced last night that such stars as Co-Captain Gene Plaza, Bill Loder and Harry Miller are doubtful starters tonight because each is currently fighting a heavy cold. Plaza and Loder missed several days of school this week because of illness.

Jim Brimer, number one guard replacement, won't play because of severe knee boils. Bruce Pipher, regular guard, may be out of the lineup for the remainder of the season with a dislocated right elbow, while halfback Frank Lupin is still on crutches with a knee injury.

If Plaza, Loder and Miller are unable to play tonight, Ralph Carter will handle the left halfback chores; Denny Wagner, right half, and Doug Dailey, fullback. Dick Gray will be at his usual fullback post.

Forward Wall

Bob Gordon and Elwood Mosteller may also see action at the end posts, Dick Wolslayer and Les Bernbaum will take turns assisting to back up the line and Ed Yankenschek will do duty at both tackle and guard.

One of the largest crowds of the season at Lehigh Valley is expected to be on hand for tonight's contest.

Irish Blank Miami, 14-0

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 7 (AP)—Notre Dame's Fighting Irish, taking to the air for the first time this football season, rode Paul Hornung's passing arm to a 14-0 victory tonight over a fumbling Miami team that couldn't cash in on its scoring opportunities.

Hornung's 11-yard shot to Eugene Kapish in the Hurricane end zone put Notre Dame in front in the first minute of the second period and the big Irish quarterback put on the clincher in the third with a 32-yard throw to swift Aubrey Lewis.

Huge Crowd

A crowd of 75,682, the biggest ever crammed into the Orange Bowl, watched Notre Dame win its 11th straight game under youthful coach Terry Brennan and score its third consecutive shutout this year. At the same time, the Irish cracked Miami's 10-game winning streak on its home field.

Penalties kept the score down as each team had a touchdown called back. In the second period, Miami's third string sophomore halfback, John Varone, sped 12 yards across the Notre Dame goal but a backfield-in-motion penalty nullified the score.

In the fourth quarter, a clipping infraction cost Notre Dame's Jim Morse a touchdown on a brilliant 65-yard return of a stolen pass.

Archery Tourney Tomorrow

AN ARCHERY tournament, under the sponsorship of the Pocono Archery Association, will be held on the Dreher Ave. archery range tomorrow at 2 p. m.

There will be a 20-target round, plus novelty shoots. There will also be a full size deer target.

Prizes

Prizes will be awarded and an entry fee of 50 cents will be charged.

The tournament is open to anyone, both men and women. Children may shoot if accompanied by a parent.

Wall Still Within Striking Distance In Eastern Open

BALTIMORE, Oct. 7 (AP)—Mike Homa, an assistant pro at Westchester Country Club of Rye, N.Y., shaved two strokes off par at rugged Mt. Pleasant course today and took the lead at the halfway mark of the Eastern Open golf tournament with a 68-70-138.

His 36-hole score shoved Homa, a former professional basketball star, one stroke ahead of Mike Souhak, the former Duke football star from Durham, N. C., and Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, the first-round co-leader.

Souhak carded a 71 in the second round over the 6,895-yard layout after matching Homa's blistering 68 yesterday in this $17,500 windup to the 1955 tournament season.

The contest, with the help of the weatherman, will be held at Gordon Giffels Field today at 8 p. m.

Coaches John Whitehead, Stroudsburg, and Rudy Penza, Pen Argyl, are expected to stick with the same lineups announced for yesterday's action.

Tie Highlights Senior Golf

POCONO MANOR — H. E. Snayberger and Harry Davis, of Schuylkill and Absecon Country Clubs respectively, shared top billing in the class "A" division of the Philadelphia Senior Golf Association Autumn Tournament here today with a net score of 69.

Each shot an actual 80 over the tough 73-par Pocono Manor layout and each was helped with a handicap of 11 strokes. Snayberger turned in a card of 39-41, while Davis carved out a 38-42 round.

R. M. Hoerner, Old York Road, led the class "B" group with a fifty 66, two strokes better than Jim Coffey, North Hills, who fashioned a 68.

Actual

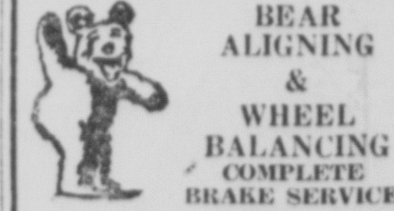

Hoerner carded an actual 48-48-96, while Coffey had a 45-46-91, but each was helped with a 30 and 23 handicap respectively.

Low gross honors for the day went to Ike Darlington, Rolling Green, who toured the front nine in 39 and the back nine in 40 for a total of 79. Darlington is a five handicap player.

Warriors To Launch Soccer Season

EAST STROUDSBURG State Teachers College will launch its soccer season today when Elizabethtown College provides the opposition up on Norml Hill. Action is slated to get under way at 2 p. m.

Coach Howard DeNike has been putting his forces through stiff workouts the past eight days and is hopeful that the club is ready to open hostilities with a victory.

A total of 49 candidates have been battling for positions on the club and DeNike has selected a squad of 25 for today's game, many of the players veterans of former campaigns.

Lineup

DeNike announced last night that Howie Staeger, back from last season, will handle the goal duties, while either Tob Benson or Dick Lamey, a pair of newcomers hold down the right fullback post. Only one other newcomer is listed for a starting berth and he is Glen Rodenbach, former star at Bethlehem's Liberty High. Rodenbach will play center forward.

Substitutes

Among the highly rated substitutes are Dick Folmer, Jack Powers, Don Klein, who reported for practice only this week; Ted Roscher, Dick Davitt, Bob Bright, John Contakes, another Bethlehem High product; Terry Hawk, Jack Saunders, Carl Schure, Don McCarty and Ken Hallden.

Elizabethtown opened its nine-game schedule last Saturday with a 3-1 victory over Gettysburg College.

Oscar J. Liljenstein, director of athletics at ESSTC, yesterday released the official soccer and field hockey schedules.

Waivers Asked On Gordon

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—The New York Giants today asked waivers on Sid Gordon, veteran utility player, for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release.

This move came just one day after the new Giant manager, Bill Rigney, signed his contract and released that he'll seek more youth on the Giant squad.

Deal

Gordon, who played for the Giants from 1941 to 1949 as an outfielder and infielder, was sent to Boston in the deal that brought Alvin Dark and Eddie Stanky to the Polo Grounds. He moved to Milwaukee with the Braves and then was shipped to Pittsburgh before returning to the Giants last June. Appearing in 81 games last season, Gordon had a .226 batting average.

ESSTC Grid Machine Invades Shippensburg For State Teachers Conference Encounter

EAST STROUDSBURG State Teachers, delayed in starting the present football season, will attempt to land its second straight favorable decision today when the Warriors lineup opposite Shippensburg State Teachers on the latter's home gridiron.

The kickoff is scheduled to take place at 2 p. m.

Today's outing is the first Pennsylvania State Teachers College Football Conference contest of the season for the ESSTC Warriors who tied Bloomsburg and West Chester for the crown last season.

ESSTC is fresh from a thrilling 19-18 verdict over Ithaca last Friday night, at Ithaca, N.Y.

Coach Gene Martin announced last night that his starting backfield today would feature Northampton's Jim Oplinger at quarterback; East Stroudsburg's Dick Merring, left half; Pen Argyl's Don Toth, right half, and Denny Roth, place kicking specialist, fullback.

Martin revealed that Gary Panovec former Wilson Borough star, would replace the injured Lew Judy at right end, Judy, who suffered a knee injury in the Ithaca game, won't be in uniform today.

Wilmon Smith, star end for the past two years, changed his mind about giving up football this season and reported to the team this week. He will see limited service today. Floyd Garis will also see action at an end post against Shippensburg.

Dick Gloyd, veteran lineman, also rejoined the team this week and will see duty in the line, as will Mahanoy City's Charley Brayford.

Guido DiTorricce, star against Ithaca, will see plenty of service in the backfield, as will Dick Bloes, Les Brubaker and Allentown's Dick Bleam.

The Warriors departed from Normal Hill at 5:30 p. m. yesterday and spent the night at the Hotel Shippen in Shippensburg.

Jackson Pounds Layne Into Defeat After Slow Start

By Joe Falls

DETROIT, Oct. 7 (AP)—Tireless Tommy Jackson, 23, the New York Hurricane, took Rex Layne's pile-driver rights for four rounds tonight. Then he opened up and stopped the flabby Utah heavyweight on a badly cut right eye in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Olympia Stadium.

Layne weighed 202, Jackson 194½. With blood gushing from a cut over Layne's right eye, Referee Lou Handler called a halt to the nationally televised bout at the 25-second mark of the round.

Badly outclassed through the first four sessions, Jackson answered the wild pleas from his corner and started firing away with both hands in the fifth.

Hammers Foo

The Negro hammered Layne from corner to corner, slicing his pudgy opponent over the eye. Layne was quite willing to fight back, even though his face was an ugly crimson mask.

Layne's corner did a quick patch job on the eye between rounds, covering the cut with cotton. But Jackson's first pop in the sixth opened it, and the red river started running again.

When the end came, Layne was ahead of the scorecards of two of the three officials. The Associated Press gave the one-time farm boy a solid margin in the first four rounds.

Tobyhanna To Battle Gouldsboro

GOULDSBORO — Tobyhanna and Gouldsboro will close out the Pocono Mountains Association baseball playoffs tomorrow here on the Gouldsboro field. The initial pitch is scheduled to take place at 2 p. m.

The diamond foes have each won a game and the post-season playoff title will be on the line today. Tobyhanna won the first game, on the Coolbaugh field, 17-7, but Gouldsboro rallied last Sunday to score a 3-2 victory at Gouldsboro.

Pitchers

Jack Dunning is expected to do the pitching for Tobyhanna once again, while Sam Curtis will be on the firing line, as usual, for Gouldsboro.

The remainder of the lineup for each club is expected to remain intact.

Gouldsboro eliminated pennant winning Moscow in the first round of playoffs and Tobyhanna finished off fourth place Daleville at the same time.

Tobyhanna was second and Gouldsboro third in the final standings of the circuit this season.

Gouldsboro won the right to play on its home field by a flip of a coin.

Elks Hear Report On Scholarships

FRED H. RHODES, leading knight, presided over the meeting of East Stroudsburg lodge of Elks this week in place of M. Russell Imbt Jr., exalted ruler. A report was given on the scholarship fund.

Clarence Rutt, chairman of the fund, informed the lodge that a boy and a girl were attending East Stroudsburg State Teachers College on a part-time scholarship furnished by the fund. Support of the project by members was urged.

A favorable report was presented on an applicant for membership. Progress is being made in the rehabilitation of the local lodge home.

John R. Hauser, secretary and district deputy grand exalted ruler, was visiting Mount Carmel lodge Thursday night and Henry McCool looked after his secretarial duties.

Hauser has paid official visits to seven lodges in the Northeast Pennsylvania District. There are 19, including East Stroudsburg.

Exalted Ruler Imbt has appointed Rhodes as chairman of the charity committee, and Elmer E. Rinehart, chairman of welfare and youth activities committee, and their co-workers to make a survey of the effect of the flood emergency. They will report on Shenandoah lodge Nov. 6 on what the Elks can do to help the needy.

Howard R. Davis, past grand exalted ruler, is in charge of disaster fund project.

Dr. Goddard States Policy

ernmental body must pass a resolution sponsoring the project. The resolution shall state that the sponsor shall acquire and furnish all the necessary easements and rights-of-way for the entire project and shall indemnify, protect and save free the Commonwealth, the Department and/or its contractors and agents, jointly and severally from and against any and all claims, demands or actions in law or equities resulting from any damages to property, public or private, by reason of the work. The maintenance clause normally included in such resolutions shall be deleted.

To assist the sponsors the Department will furnish blank forms which may be used in obtaining rights-of-entry and easements from the owners of properties adjoining the stream within the limits of the work.

Neither the sponsor nor the local people will be required to make a contribution to the project. However, where necessary, they must arrange for the removal of any buildings, utility lines or other such objects which would interfere with the construction of the project. Also, where rock rip-rap is needed for bank protection, or clayey material for levee construction, the local people must provide a suitable source in the near vicinity of the work.

Justification

In determining whether or not a project is justified, the engineer must take into consideration damages during the recent flood and possible future damages which might occur in the event of a normal flood.

Monroe County Red Cross Reports Routine Work is Continuing With No Letup

THE ROUTINE WORK of the Monroe County Chapter, American Red Cross, quite apart from its disaster operations, has continued unabated. It was evident from reports submitted at last night's meeting of the executive committee at Red Cross headquarters.

Russell Harmon presided in the absence of chapter chairman, Charles Bensinger, who is taking part in a panel discussion at Penn State.

Mrs. Clifford Heller, home service chairman reported that 15 cases had been cared for during the month with 91 requests not counted as cases. Twelve of the 15 were active service calls and required 19 long distance calls and 16 telegrams. There were 252 office interviews and three meal tickets issued to transients.

Mrs. LeRoy Koehler chairman of Volunteer Special Services reported that throughout September the Gray Lady Service had continued to function at the hospital with 37 volunteers giving 401 hours. A total of 43 volunteers gave 619 hours in chapter service during the month. Mrs. Koehler will attempt to make a summary of all volunteer services during the disaster period.

Speaking of the visit of the Bloodmobile to the West End this month, LeRoy Mikkels, blood donor chairman, reported that most of the 46 donors came from the rural area, and that he was proud of their showing. The failure to achieve the goal of 125 pints resulted from the fact that donors expected from that State Belt area had not appeared.

He reported that Berwick, Hazleton and Weatherly had all given extra blood to be credited to Monroe County during the disaster period and expressed hope that during November and December blood donor visits, this county could achieve 500 pints to bring the blood credit up to quota.

ing the stream within the limits of the work.

Neither the sponsor nor the local people will be required to make a contribution to the project. However, where necessary, they must arrange for the removal of any buildings, utility lines or other such objects which would interfere with the construction of the project. Also, where rock rip-rap is needed for bank protection, or clayey material for levee construction, the local people must provide a suitable source in the near vicinity of the work.

Justification

In determining whether or not a project is justified, the engineer must take into consideration damages during the recent flood and possible future damages which might occur in the event of a normal flood.

There is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your future. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers. Left to right then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Many Leaders Weaken; Stock Average Slips

NEW YORK, Oct. 7 (AP)—Blue chip stocks ran into a phase of weakness today and sent the market down rather sharply.

The price erosion took place without uncovering much selling, although the tempo of trading quickened as prices slipped.

All major divisions were involved, but at the close some good plus signs remained in the aircraft and other scattered areas.

Prices were down 1 to around 3 points at the outside. At one time losses had a top limit of 6 points.

The market began on a lower plane and continued slipping a little bit at a time until the fifth hour. Then there was a display of weakness in the blue chip division. However, before the close there was a substantial recovery from the lows, and the finish was quiet.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off $1.40 at $168.90. That is $1.20 under the previous day's close, and a week ago Monday, when the President was ill, and it is 40 cents under the August lows.

dations to Congress.

In each instance, the officers, said these projects they recommend would be carried out after Congress approves them "and after funds are provided."

Rep. Flood took some exception to the matter of "providing funds." Government bureaucrats, he said, have a bad habit of saying it's up to Congress to get the funds. That, he warned, is "not quite the whole truth."

"Let me tell you people here who are looking for X-billions for flood control, how it works:

Funds Face Cuts

"First, it is the department secretary who makes the recommendation funds to the Bureau of Budget. It might say the Director of the Budget is somewhat of a 'deity' in Washington, and all those goes for any administration that's in power. The Budget Bureau takes a whack at your flood bill, then the head of the engineers takes a slash at it, then it goes to the White House to be checked on the basis of the policy of whatever administration is in power. There's always someone there who is bucking for stripes and he puts the axe on it.

"Finally, your flood control money, emasculated, cut up and barely able to stand up, staggers to the House appropriations committee, and there, we take a whack at it to prove to you we're on the job, but remember what it went through before we ever see it," he said.

One exception to this, Flood said, is the Bear Creek flood control dam which will be built at a cost of $20 million to protect the Lehigh Valley. Here, he said, Rep. Walter, Easton, himself, Reps. Pennington and Carring won a long battle. Flood said the dam will provide additional recreation facilities for this region.

Francis A. Pitkin, chairman of Incoed, filed a report on the recent meeting of that body, dealing largely with a revived drive to build the Wallpack Bend dam.

In loving memory of our son, Charles, who passed away Oct. 9, 1945:

OUR SON

Seven years, Oh yes, it seems an age. Since in our life we turned that page Of sorrow, departure and a vacant place. Which from our mind we cannot erase.

It was a crisp morn in early fall. Suddenly we received that tragic call. Our young son, only child and heir. Had been badly wounded by his playmates toy.

He was with us but a few hours, —and never knew. For God called him home with his chosen few.

A cherub in picture in God's Waiting Room. We'll join him there.

Now for other fond parents we humbly pray. Protect and teach your child not to play. With children which are allowed a toy. It was by this deadly toy we lost our son, loving Parents.

Drake Buys Laurel Lodge For $22,500

LESLIE C. DRAKE, president of the Delaware Valley Transportation Co., last night announced plans to convert Laurel Lodge in Delaware Water Gap into 10 apartment units.

Drake said he hopes to have the units ready for occupancy by April 1. Each will have one or two bedrooms.

Drake purchased the hotel property from Marion C. Brislin, Brooklyn, for $22,500, a deed filed in the office of Register and Recorder Floyd Butz shows.

Another lot in Delaware Water Gap was also purchased by Drake from Mrs. Brislin, along with four from Francis Sullivan, Chicago, and another from H. H. Benton.

This means that Drake now owns all the property previously held by Mrs. Mary McCarthy. The latter built the hotel in the 1920s with her brother, Robert Foley. They lost the property in a sheriff's sale in 1930.

Other Transactions

Drake indicated that he has plans for the other lots in the area, but does not wish to make them known until they are further developed.

Other deeds filed yesterday indicate:

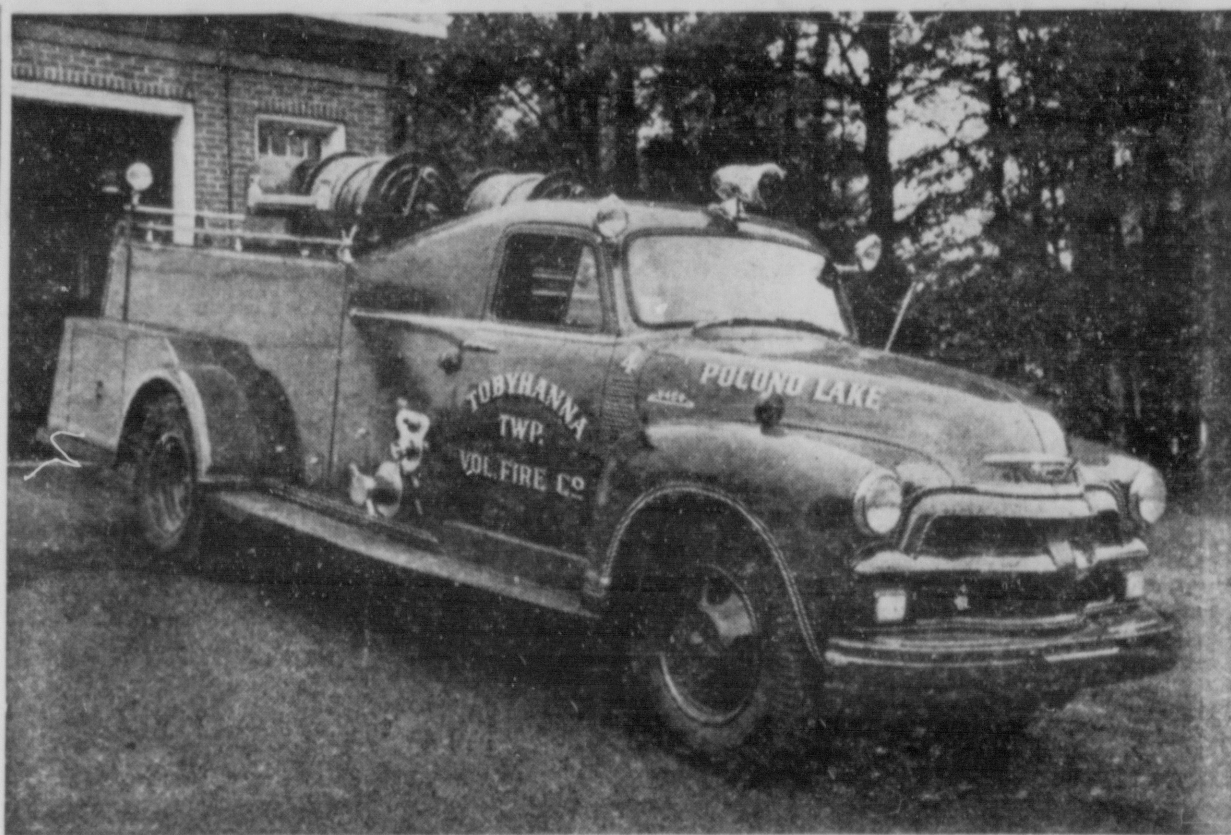

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Joella, Bangor, have transferred a building and two lots in East Stroudsburg to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Joella, Bangor.

Harry C. Armitage, Stroud Township, has transferred a lot in Smithfield Township to Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Fish, East Stroudsburg.

Residential Investments, Inc., Stroudsburg, has transferred a lot in Stroud Township to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer M. Rinehart, Stroudsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Warke, Allentown, have transferred a lot in Coolbaugh Township to Paul Meyers, Mount Bethel; William F. Hughes, and Michael Dugas, both of Easton, and Carl Raub, Phillipsburg, N. J.
